Life Matching Our Performance: Helen Hayes is still recognized as the 'First Lady of the Theatre'. She was a long-standing member of the Theatre Hall of Fame, won Academy Awards in 1932 and 1970, and was named "Woman of the Year" in 1973 by Ladies Home Journal. But, besides her professional successes, Helen Hayes was noted for her humanitarian services. When her only daughter Mary died of polio in 1949 at the age of 19, Helen Hayes began helping the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis with her fund-raising. After her husband Charles MacArthur died in 1956, Helen Hayes got involved in helping Fr. William Wasson with his Mexican infants in Cuernavaca. During the Civil Rights Movement she played a part in the desegregation of theatres in the Washington D.C. area. In 1980 a new hospital was dedicated in her name on her 80th birthday in appreciation for her 40 years of volunteer service at the old facility. — At the dedication the New York Governor Hugh Carey said: "In her work for the handicapped Helen Hayes has acted out, measure for measure, of her most moving performances in the quiet dedicated service of her fellow human beings." (Albert Cylwicki, in His Word Resounds; quoted by Fr. Botelho).
